Key & Interpretating the Data

We prepare our food in one kitchen and whilst we have strict controls and standards from field to fork to minimise risk, please be aware that cross-contamination may occur and our food may contain or come into contact with common allergens, such as dairy, wheat, soybeans, eggs, celery or mustard. If you, or anyone you are ordering for, has a food allergy, please check our nutritional & allergen guide

‘Yes’ in a column indicates that the product contains that allergen and is not suitable for you to consume if you suffer from this allergy.

‘C’ means that those allergens are present at the manufacturing site or across the supply chain and there is a risk of cross contamination.
